On Monday next this popular drama will be presented at the National Theatre and run throughout the week. The following from a metropolitan journal is re-echoed here by all who have witnessed the play as performed by the admirable company presenting it: The play is one of the strongest of the recent productions of celebrated English melo-dramatic writers, written especially with a view to strong secule effect and the introduction of stage mechanism and ingenuity not necessary or essential to the success of light dramatic works. The plot of "Lights o' London" has continuity, the characters are well developed and the scenes and situations vividly dramatic and effective. It bounds in striking and sensational stage pictures, and excites and holds the interest of the auditors from the opening of the first act until the closing scene of its "cpresentation. Lavian promises had been made of gorgoous scenic display, and faithfully were they fulfilled, the production of last night being marked by a wealth of stage-setting seldem witnessed in cities of this size.

A Strange Story.

New York society is enjoying au entertaining bit of tittle-tattle. One of its most conspicuous members, long known as an inverente weman-hater, promoter of bachloor clubs, &c., has had his pet theory blown to atoms by his foster son, a young man brought up to be a living exponent of his father's doctrine, eloping with a sprightly ward of the old gentleman's. Having been suspected of this hereited design the young fellow had been summarily marched off to the puternal residence on the Hudson, where his fester father tried the ridiculous scheme of starting a bachclor brotherhood, the objectionable fair sex being rigidly excluded. But love laughts at locksmiths, and the lovers are now enjoying their honeymoon.

However, retribution has overlaken the old gentleman himself, and shortly after Easter it is said he will lead to the after his former housekeeper.

A new and very elever addition to novels characteristic of society life at the National Capital has been published by James R. Osgood & Co., Roston. It is entitled "Her Washington Season," and is from the pen of one of the most gifted ladies of literature who graces the social life of our city—Mrs. Jeans Goald Lincoln. It is in the epiteboary form and decidedly attractive in style, and as easy in expression as it is excellent in conveption.

The novel is dedicated to Mrs. B. Oglo Tapies, of Washington.

Anniversary of the Seldiers' Temperance Union.

A large number of the friends of temperance gathered has evening in the reading-room at the Arsenal to assist in the celebration of the first anniversary of the Soldiers' Temperance Union. Mr. George Kelly, vice-president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, presided; Mrs. Lizzle Pope, chorister, opened the proceedings by muste and solo, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," which was received with great applians by the soldier boys, after which Mr. Kelly turned the meeting over to Rev. James C. Lee, chaplain of the Union, who told the boys that he had been heart and hand with them in their work for the past year, but now that he had received his discharge from the service of the United States he would try and do even more than he had done in the past for the promotion of temperance among the soldier boys.

He was followed by Sergeant Charies Maginniss, of the Second Battery, who stated that he was one of the first to join the Union, and that he did so at the request of the Indies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, one year ago, and that he had remained steadfast ever since, and he foll proud of it, for before asoldner week would roll around he would have his discharge from this battery, and expected to be upon the police force, and he wanted to assure the boys that he should enry his temperance principles with him to the save his discharge from this battery, and expected to be upon the police force, and he wanted to assure the boys that he should enry his temperance principles with him to the save his discharge from this battery, and expected to be upon the police force, and he wanted to assure the boys that he should enry his temperance principles with him to the save his discharge of the World of a save his delicities of the wanted to that he had read as the region of the loudy for him he had been been delicities of the wanted to the save his delicities of the wanted of the wanted was received with tremedous applause.

The people of East Washington are wondering what has become of the $3,000 appropriated to improve the public reservation between Fifth and Sixth streets and South Carolina avenue and Estreet. A few cart-loads of dirt were hauled away lest aummer, but no grading whatever was done. The amount appropriated would suffice in making a very handsome park.

SOUTH WASHINGTON.

Dr. R. A. Bacon, who has been on a visit to his former home in Vermont for the past four weeks, has returned to the city, greatly benefited by his trip.

Great indignation is expressed by teamsters who have to drive over the Long Bridge at the condition in which the floor of the bridge is kept. The mud is so deep that wagoning is made extremely difficult. It is said that a full wagon load of bricks cannot be taken on account of the difficulty of carrying them, but that hair a load only can be put on. The people from Virgibia want the thing remedied. M. Mr. Adam Koehler, of Sixth street southwest, has contributed fifty-two more loavee of bread to be distributed by the officers of the Estreet Station-House.

Virginia avenue and E street, along which the wagons loaded with coal from the Baltimore & Potemac freight depot are secuntomed to go, are in a very muddy and almost impassable condition.

WEST WASHINGTON.

WEST WASHINGTON.

A large meeting of the coopers of West Washington was held last evening at Goddard's Hall. Nearly every cooper in this section of the city was present, and great interest was manifested. It was decided to unite with the Knights of Labor and officers were elected.

Evidence that spring is approaching is found in the fact that the W. & G. Ealiroad put on one of it-open cars this morning.

Remarked a prominent business man of went Washington this morning regarding the free bridge: "There certainly seems to be more of a prospect of obtaining it than there has been ever before. Still I am afraid there will be some hitch at the last moment. When the bridge company find we are in earnest they will probably want to give up the Aqueduct plore. Between the piers and the Three Sisters there will very likely be trouble."

That West Washington is a pretty healthy place just now is shown by the fact that not a single case of death was found on a visit to four different undertakers this morning.

Business with the police is dull. Not an arrest last night or this moraing recorded at the Third Frecinct Station.

It is announced that a well-known and popular young man of this section will become a benedict after Easter. The names are not yet given, but the reporter is assured that it will be an event.

I'm a traveler from over the sea;
I've wandered o'er valley and ridge.
And have come to the "land of the free,"
But I'm blocked at the Aqueduct Bridge.

The Potomac, that runs to the sea, And the Arlington home of the dead Are taxed by the Bridge tyranny; Yet we boast of a slavery fled!

The Monument shines in the sun And the White Dome looms to the sky; Yet, even when daylight is done, We are taxed on the Bridge passing by.

"Stand and deliver!" their motto will be,
To those of the land and those from the sea;
But we have determined—we fairly agree—
A Bridge we must have, and that Bridge must be free.

A meeting of the old Friendship Fire Company will be held to-night for the purpose of reorganizing. The company will petition the Board of Fire Wardens for a line of hose. They propose that the hand-engine of the company be held in reserve only to be ordered out by the chief engineer in case of need. The department of this city at present consists of two steamers and a hook-and-ladder truck, and two or three months in the year one or the other of the steamers is out of service, receiving repairs, or from other causes. The old Friendship engine has done great service for the pest century, and at comparatively small expense to the city she can be put into active service again.
